About Us

Our family has been stewards of the same land since 1905.

In the late 1970's, our farm began growing fresh veggies for our community. Since that time, we've been marketing our produce at farmer's markets including the Ann Arbor Farmer's Market, Downtown Farmington Farmer's Market and Chelsea Farmer's Market.

We first started a CSA program in 2012 and are happy to continue to share the bounty of our farm with our community.

Three generations of our family provide the energy and expertise to operate our farm.

We are a traditional family farm!

What is a CSA and how does it work?

First practiced in Europe several decades ago, a Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) Program connects the eater to the farmer. Each week a box of assorted vegetables that are in the peak of their season will be delivered straight from the field to you. The consumer invests in the farm and shares in the bounty and the risks of growing.

Our Growing Practices

We believe the key to healthy produce is healthy soil. We use cover crops, manure, and compost to regenerate our soil. Our sustainable practices and biologically active soil promote superior flavor in our produce. Also, all our crops are non-GMO. Since our farm is also our home, we are careful to steward our resources for future generations.

We personally manage the harvesting and packing of our produce to ensure that produce from our farm is not only healthy, but also safe.
